USAIG Clarifies Confusion Over Names

New York, NY September 2008...The United States Aircraft Insurance Group (USAIG) President & Chief Operating Officer David L. McKay issued the following statement in response to industry confusion over the similarity of the brand names USAIG and AIG:

The USAIG, which was founded in 1928, is a group of insurance companies organized to provide a complete spectrum of aviation insurance for owners, operators, manufacturers and maintainers of corporate, private and commercial aircraft. The USAIG is not affiliated with “American International Group” (AIG). They are completely separate and distinct organizations and have no common ownership or legal relationship.

The Member Companies of USAIG are:

ACE American Insurance Company
General Reinsurance Corporation, a Berkshire Hathaway Company
Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, and
Wesco-Financial Insurance Company, also a Berkshire Hathaway Company

Each of the Member Companies of the USAIG maintains a Best Rating ranging from A to “Superior” A++.

Additional information about USAIG and its Members can be found on www.usaig.com under About USAIG.
